This stunning cinema verité documentary follows the members of a special police task force as they track a serial rapist in a Latino neighborhood in Miami. The dedicated officers are themselves Latino, and we see them in their squad cars, at their desks and around the dinner table as they struggle to relieve the community's fear of the rapist and capture the culprit. The film details the complications inherent in the strategic use of the media and racial profiling, right through to the film's riveting and shockingly humane climax.
